The Singapore Government together with the concurrence of the Government of the Republic of Indonesia has appointed Encik Othman Wok as Singapore Ambassador to the Republic of Indonesia, succeeding Encik A Rahim Ishak.

When Singapore became independent in 1965 he became the Minister for Culture and Social Affairs. After the General Elections of 1968 he continued as the Minister for Social Affairs, a post he holds today.

As Singapore Ambassador to Indonesia, he will continue to hold the rank of Minister.

Encik Othman Wok is married with four children.
