Factsheet – Command and Staff Course

The Command and Staff Course (CSC) is conducted by the Singapore Command and Staff College over three terms spanning a total of 34 weeks:

a. Foundation Term - This is a common 14-week term designed to provide students with a basic foundation in the operations across all the Services (Army, Navy and Air Force). Apart from operational staff work, key course modules include war & security studies, military technology, leadership & management, and international law.

b. Service Term - This is a 12-week Special-to-Service term where students are grouped into their respective Services for lessons on the various operations specific to the Service. Role-playing and tutorial mapping exercises, validated through the use of war-gaming techniques, are the key areas in this term. In addition, students are further exposed to instruction in military technology and international law, particularly those that apply to their respective Service.

c. Joint Term - This term spans eight weeks and students receive instruction in joint operations, peacekeeping operations, war & security studies, as well as leadership & management.
